

In Australia, gun controllers got their dream.

In 1996, authorities passed a "firearms elimination program" in which the government forced law-abiding gun owners to surrender some 640,381 personal firearms, including shotguns and semi-automatic .22 caliber rifles in addition to handguns.

Crime rates had been declining steadily in Australia for the 25 years prior to enactment of the gun legislation law.

But in the 12 months afterward, homicides were up 3.2 %, assaults were up 8.6 % and armed robberies were up a whopping 44 %.

The evidence is clear. When guns are outlawed, only outlaws will have guns.
